

My giant oaktree business.

Why do I visualise my business as an oak tree?

Visualization is the process of forming mental visual images or interpreting visual terms and putting them into visible form.

It involves forming a picture of something in your mind.

Visualization is a technique that can be used to create a strong mental image of a future event, practice in advance for the event, and build self-confidence.

Think about it.

How does an oak tree grow and survive.

Mature oak trees are a magnificent sight to behold. They stand tall and proud, their wide canopy of branches supported by a thick, strong trunk.

The oak tree life cycle begins with a seed. The seed germinates, sprouts, and becomes a sapling.

Given the ideal conditions, saplings grow into strong oak trees. In time, they bear flowers, which, when fertilized become fruit, commonly known as acorns.

They drop to the ground; those that aren't consumed by animals or ravaged by the weather contain seeds that root into the soil.

Seeds:

The embryo of the oak is packaged safely within a cupule – an acorn to you and me.

Rodents, deer, and birds eat the majority of fallen acorns. It is commonplace to see squirrels storing acorns for use later in the year. They don't all get dispersed; they are mostly too heavy to catch on the wind, although some might drift in free-flowing water.

The hardiest survivors that stay within 30m of the parent tree are the ones that have the best chances of taking root and germinating. The luckiest acorns land beneath the protective covering of a fallen log, in filled soil, or safely hidden beneath a litter of leaves.

Mature oak trees are a magnificent sight to behold. They stand tall and proud, their wide canopy of branches supported by a thick, strong trunk.

The Bur Oak is one of the most common oaks in America; they grow up to an impressive 110ft tall.

The oak tree life cycle begins with a seed. The seed germinates, sprouts, and becomes a sapling. Given the ideal conditions, saplings grow into strong oak trees. In time, they bear flowers, which, when fertilized become fruit, commonly known as acorns.

They drop to the ground; those that aren't consumed by animals or ravaged by the weather contain seeds that root into the soil.

The life cycle of an oak tree varies between varieties; however, they all share the same stages; it is the timings that differ.

Germination

Those acorns that escape the threats to growth anchor themselves into the soil with an embryonic root. It grows deep in the search for water and creates an anchor for the seedling.

Whatever the climate throws at it, the strongest root will stand firm, even in icy, windy, or humid conditions.

Sprouting

Inside the embryo are two cotyledons; it is within these structures that food is stored.

During the following spring, the soil's moisture encourages the cotyledons to swell enough to crack the outer shell of the acorn.

A slender shoot slowly forms and breaks through the ground.

The cotyledons remain a fixture of the seedling as it grows in height and girth.

They continue to feed the tiny tree for months, even as the leaves begin to form, and photosynthesis begins.

It is when the chlorophyll and sunlight combine in sufficient quantities that the cotyledons fall away.

The seedling grows slowly, approximately 30-45cm per year. When it reaches 1m tall and has a diameter of around 3", it becomes a sapling.

Saplings are intolerant of competition, so this is the stage when many lose their battle to more invasive plants.

Trees that survive beyond this point and achieve a 12" diameter are known as poles and have the greatest chance of becoming a mighty oak.

The speed at which your oak tree grows is dependent on four factors:

1. Species
2. Soil nutrients
3. Water
4. Climate

From tiny acorns, great oaks grow," so the saying goes.

It isn't always so; they face many battles and hardships along the way.

From being eaten by wildlife, harmed by humans and their machinery, to fire and harsh weather conditions, the tiny acorn has to put up a fight to thrive.

But the rewards are magnificent. Each oak tree provides food and shelter to birds and wildlife, supplies shade and beauty for many decades.

First things:

Desire to plant an oak tree.

Why and what is important to you.

What are the must haves that you don't have now in your life?

Seeds: Seeds are the basic and foundational knowledge you must have or acquire.

Poor quality seeds will not produce quality trees.

The seeds of my success are deeply rooted in the strength and character of the founders of my business connections.

Your current thoughts and thinking (your context) have not gotten you what you say are you must have.

What has got you here will not get you there.

The world has taught us how to think and not how to think.

The training portal is the "how to think" information.

Germination:

The application of this knowledge is critical.

Application is the creation of personal power. It is teaching your subconscious mind the new thoughts. These new thoughts will create new feelings, new emotions.

The new thoughts create new actions and decisions.

Over time these new actions create new results.

The training is nourishing these seeds by providing the right nutrients.

The invisible is becoming visible.

Sprouting:

Once you have begun to apply new thoughts to the subconscious, the new actions are resulting in a “new you”.

You are creating your new identity.

Identity is how we see ourselves. It's based on how we see ourselves.

How we see ourselves depends on where our attention is focused. My attention is focused on the visual of my oak tree.

My imagination then builds the oak tree with people who want what I want.

To feel powerful and alive. To have a sense of purpose. To be of service and value to others.

These are the seeds of success.

Saplings: These sprouts have the opportunity to grow into saplings. Many saplings will become distracted by circumstances in their life and stop feeding. Many saplings may wither and die(fail).

To continue to grow is the personal development we continue to do.

The saplings that continue to grow are those who continue to work from the inside out.

They monitor their thoughts and use the power of will keep focused on the tree.

Saplings that do this become poles.

Poles now have the ability to withstand the winds of other people's opinions.

They can be counted on to stand strong in the face of personal fear.

They can grow into oak trees.

It's not uncommon for some types of oak tree to grow in excess of 100 feet tall.

This height requires a strong root system.

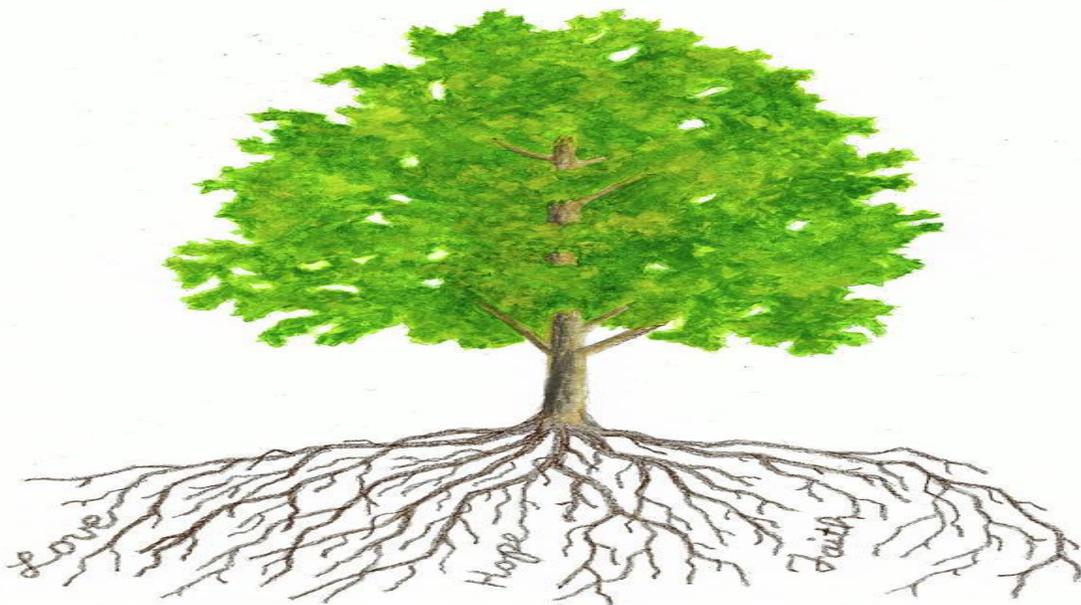

The root system.

Oak trees develop deep tap roots.

An oak tree 's tap root can grow up to 20 feet deep, making it one of the deepest tap roots of any tree.

The tap root is the primary root that grows straight down from the tree's trunk. It also has many other lateral roots.

The tap root anchors the tree and helps it to absorb water and nutrients from the soil, whilst the lateral roots provide stability.

An oak with a healthy root system can develop into a majestic, round-crowned shade tree.

The root system of my business.

As a distributor of another company's products, I wanted to be certain of the foundation of my business.

Transform Your Life From The Inside Out.

The Master Of Destinies Success Coaching and Training is a curriculum consisting of a series of online courses and virtual live events.

These courses and events are designed to fast track your ability to transform your life and create significant wealth.

It's development began in 1998 with live training events and conference calls designed to assist entrepreneurs in overcoming the obstacles of success.

It quickly became obvious that what was holding people back was primarily psychological in nature.

Limiting beliefs, illogical fears, a negative self-image, a lack of understanding how to manage one's emotional state, the lack of awareness of how one's own emotional state impacts others, a lack of direction, goals, certainty and self-confidence.

In other words, if people can't get the mental game of success and leadership right, nothing else matters. This realization is the genesis of our Master Of Destinies Curriculum.

Quantum State Coaching is a technology of perception and communication, giving participants new ways of decoding their inner and outer world for greater control, engagement and joy for life.

Quantum State Coaching works to unlock more than 200 Transformative Distinctions for its students, coaches and clients.

Each transformative distinction amplifies and clarifies self-awareness and situational awareness, granting participants access to deeper levels of perception, thought, communication and control in all aspects of life.

These are award winning programs that I knew I could teach and train others how to BECOME what they desired to BE.

The Journey of BECOMING is based on these principles. When I purchased the products, they became mine, so if anything, ever, went sideways, I knew I had the right material.

The Owners:

SHANE KRIDER

*Lead Transformation Coach - Prosperity Of Life
Author/Speaker/Lead Coach/Podcast Host/Investor/Philanthropist*

Shane Krider has been a constant student of leadership development and personal development for twenty years.

His desire to learn how to increase business results propelled him into the world of self-improvement. It was within this sector that Shane found professional and personal success.

RACHEL KRIDER

*Lead business building coach
Master Coach/Speaker/Trainer/ Podcaster/Million-Dollar-Earner*
Rachel Krider is a devoted personal development student, public speaker, success coach, world traveler, and mom.
She is a true success story of how investing in yourself and the personal development industry can change your life.

GREGORY STROM

*Lead media and content producer - Prosperity Of Life
Media Producer/Author/TV Director.*

"For the past three decades Greg Strom has produced and directed over 1,000 television commercials, music videos and feature films. As a lifelong practitioner of personal development, he is responsible for producing the Prosperity Of Life educational media products. He has spent over 30 years in New York and Los Angeles learning his craft, and this experience has helped create the international award-winning products that lead the way in Success Education.

You can read more about them and the business here

This and others gave me the peace of mind that this was a business model and base that I knew I could plant myself and grow.

My business by Design is perfectly aligned with these concepts.

Like the oak tree, it takes tenacity and will to thrive and grow, but the rewards are magnificent.

Each oak tree provides food and shelter to birds and wildlife, supplies shade and beauty for many decades.

My business allows for financial peace of mind, provides reliable income and repeat sales. The high profit margins are the key to success in any business. The rewards are really worth the effort.

Choice.

However, the Journey must have a beginning. To understand the foundational concepts of your invisible paradigm requires knowledge of self.

The training portal gives you a very affordable knowledge base.

This is your opportunity to take the first steps on your journey.

There is no better time than now.

Start your Journey ...or not.

As always it's your choice.

